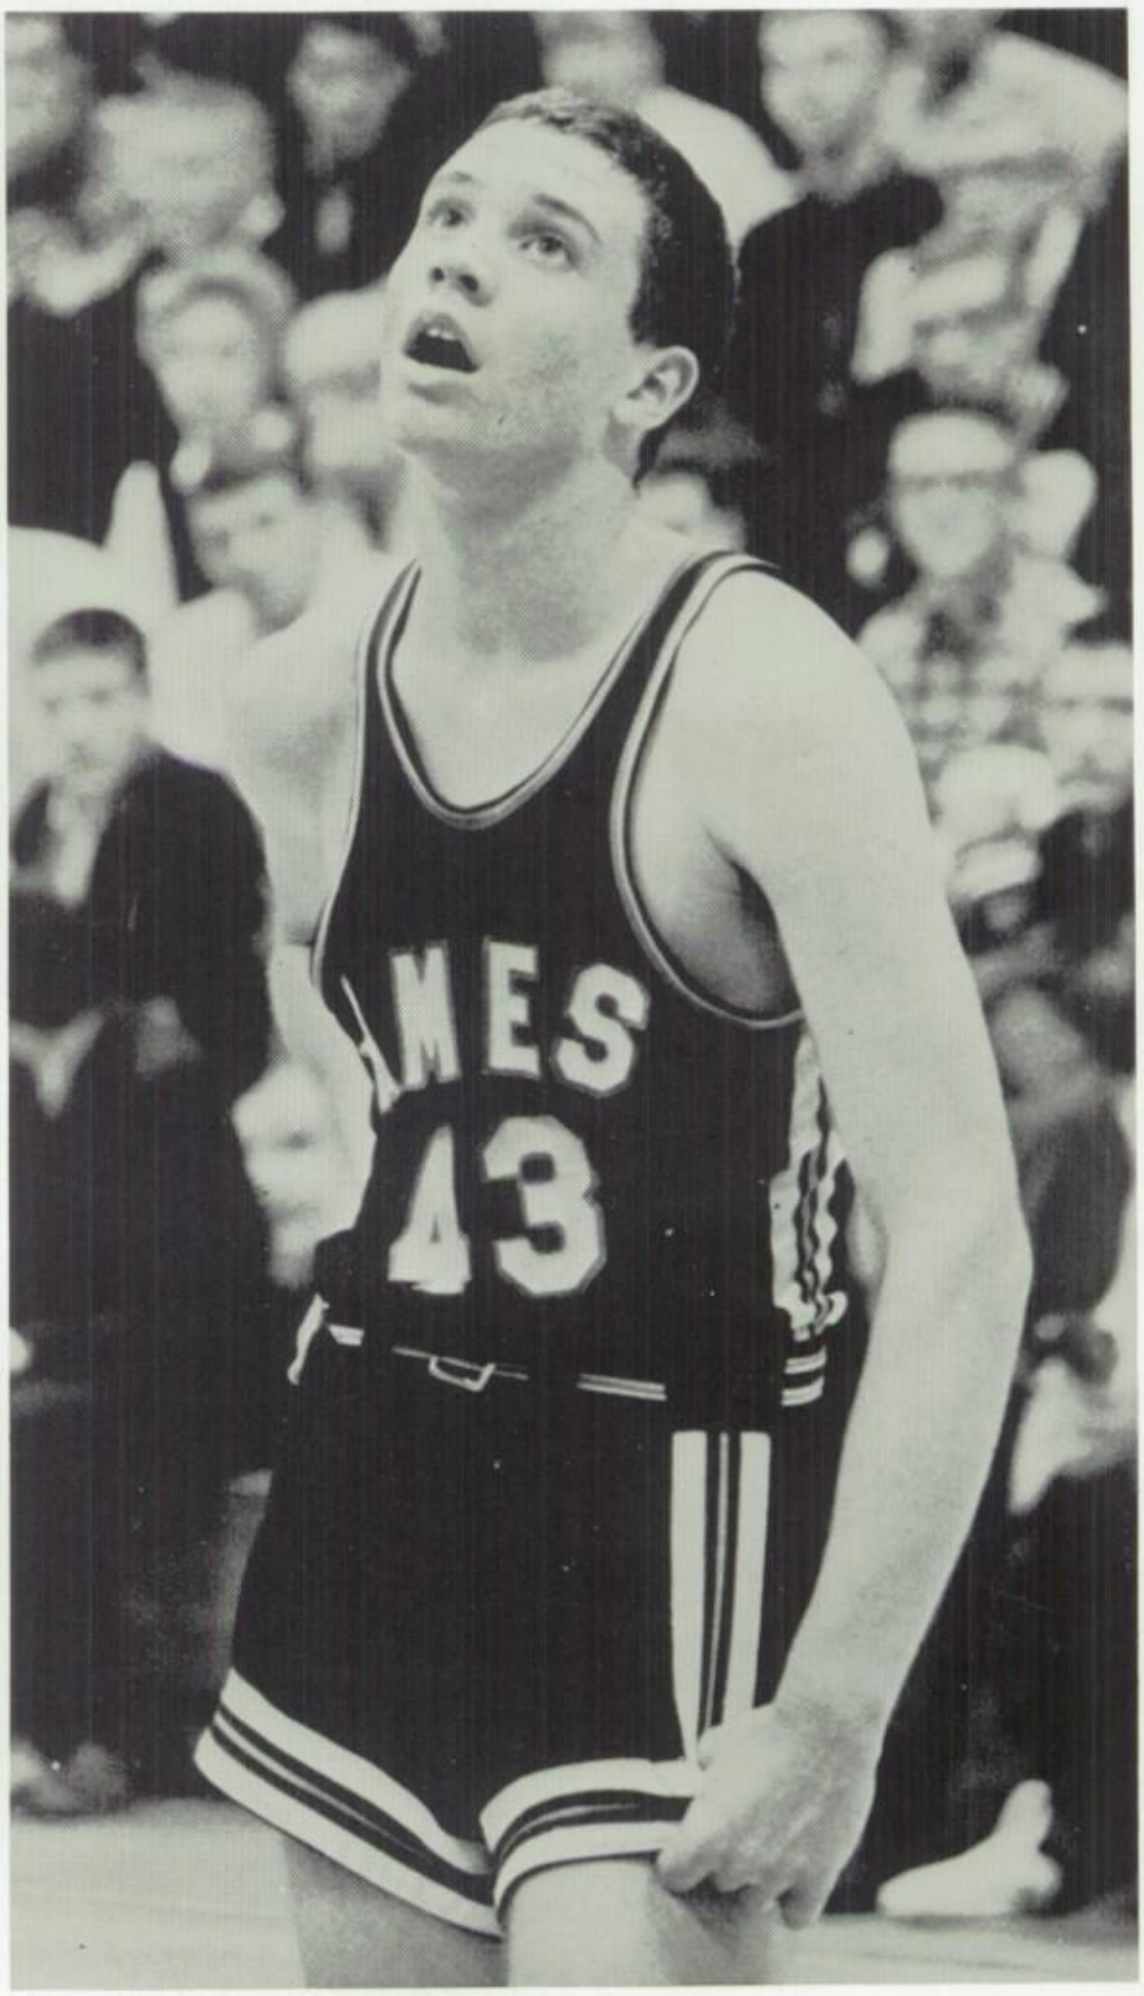
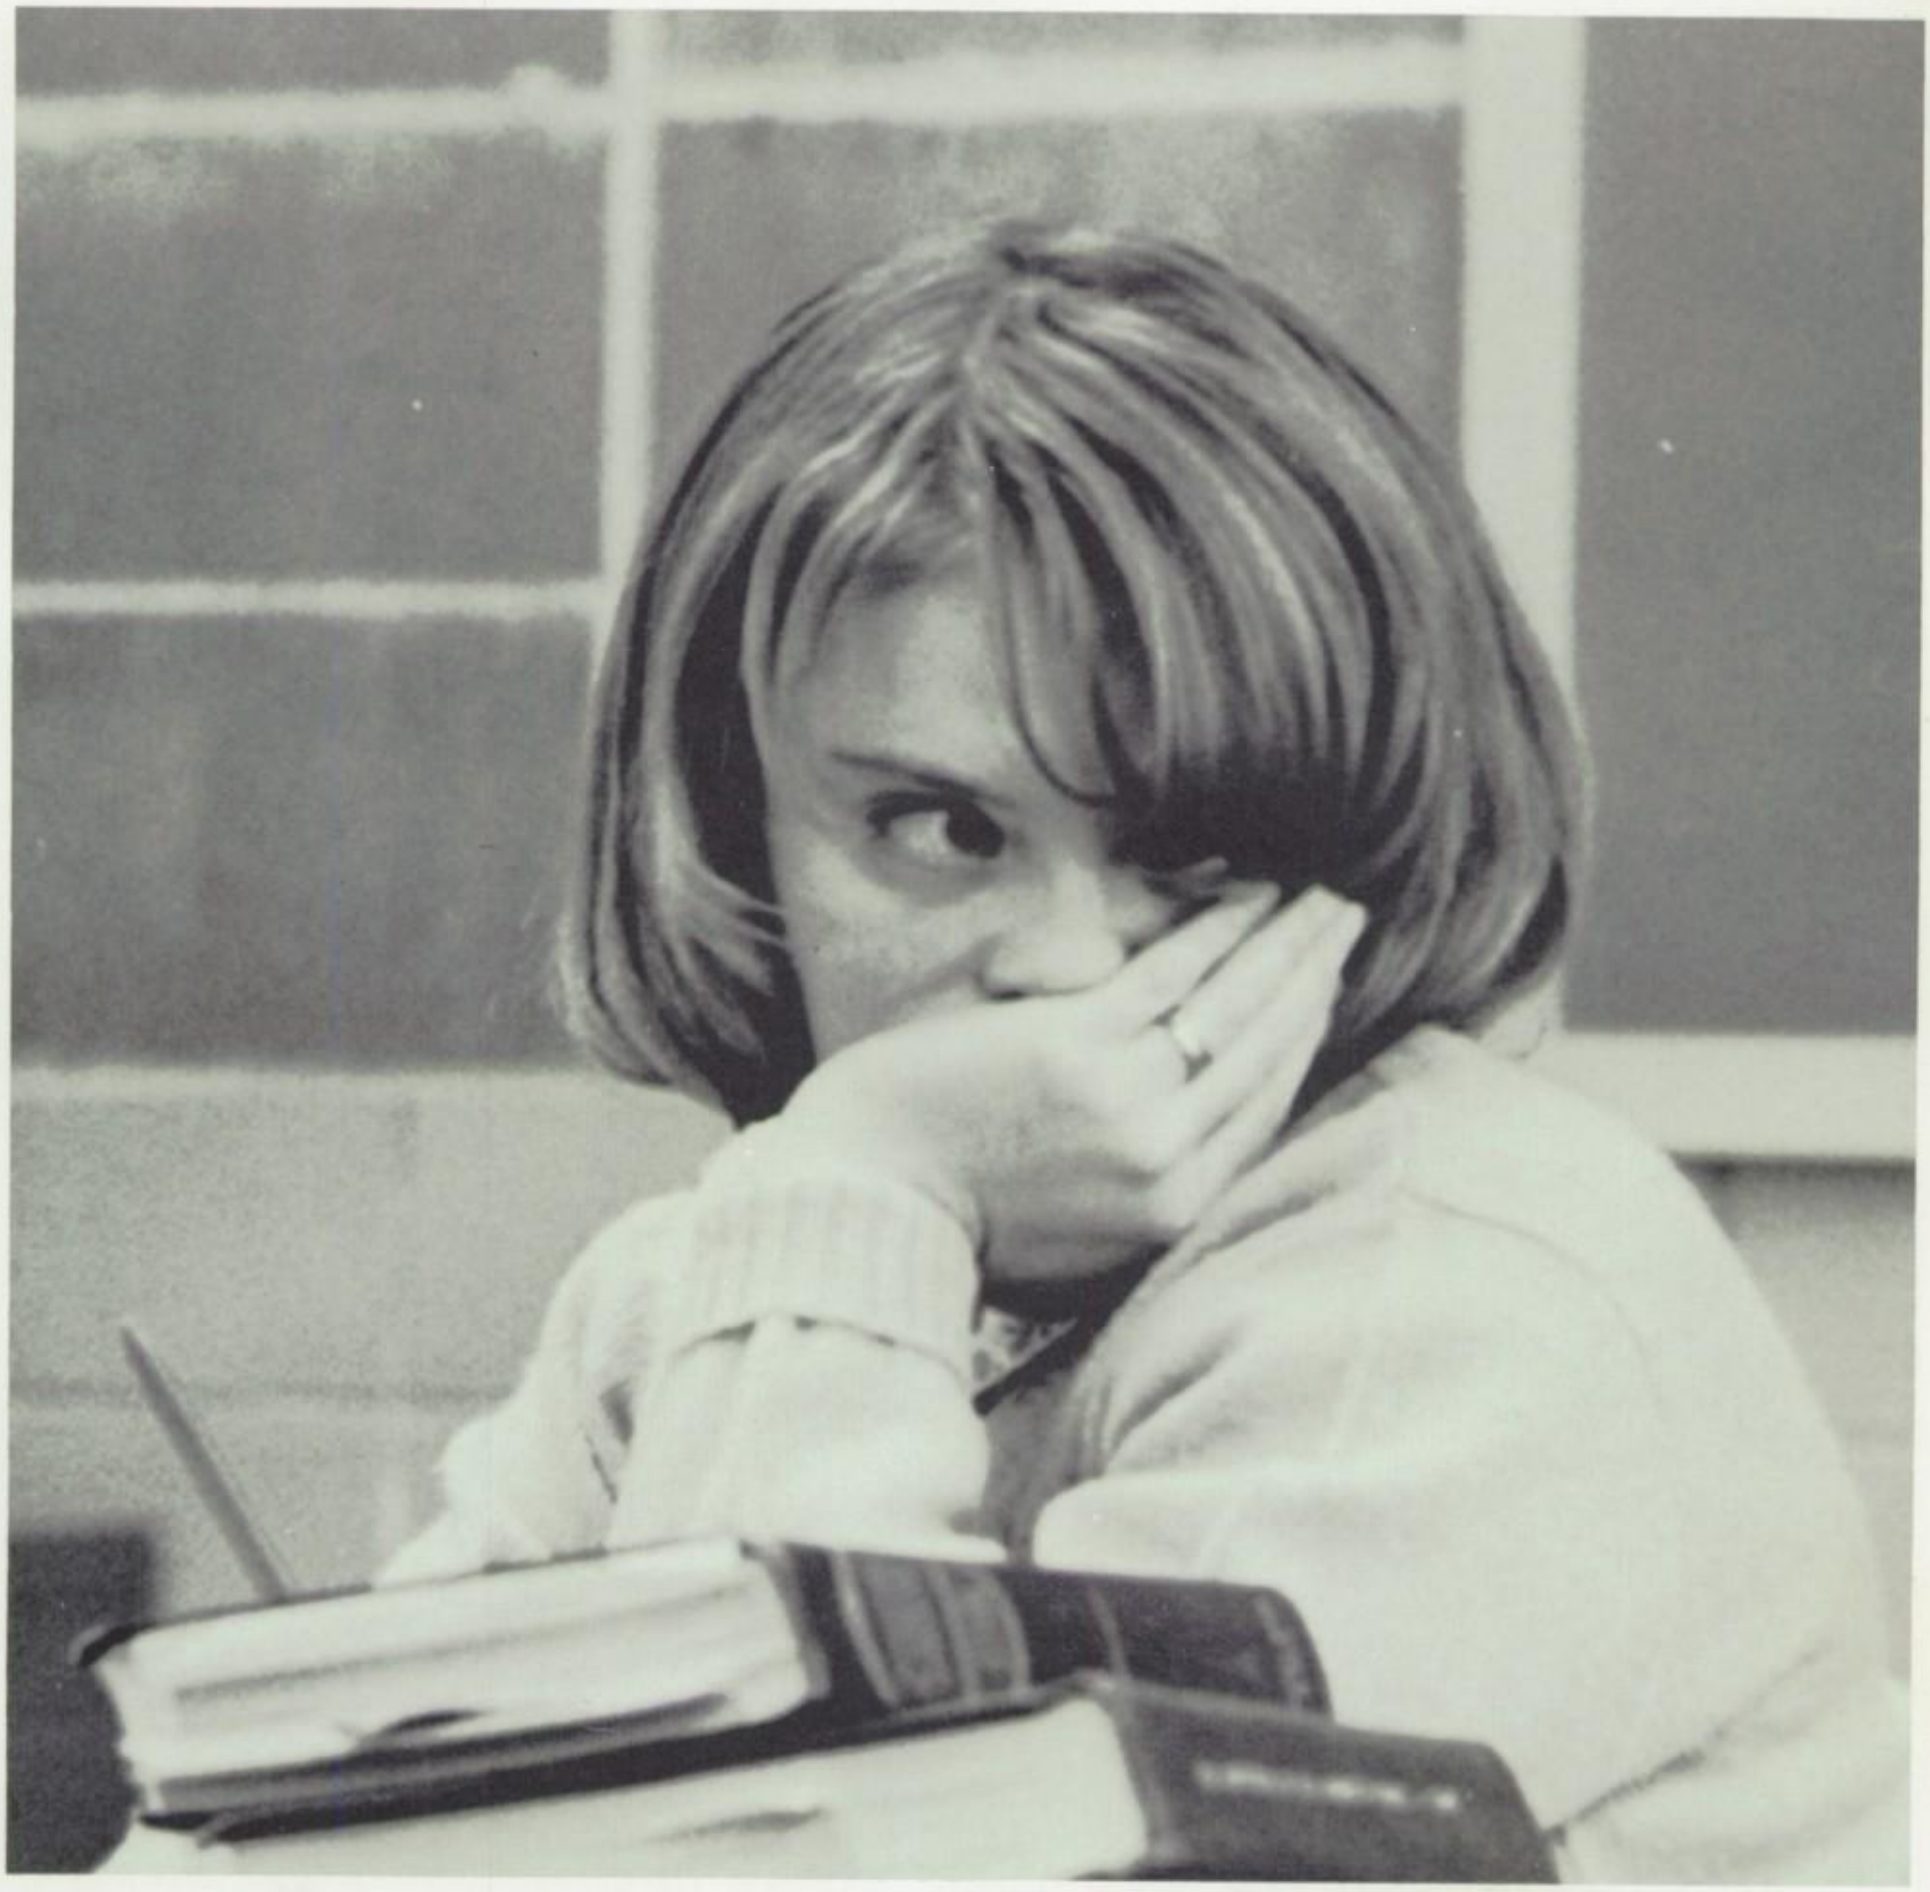
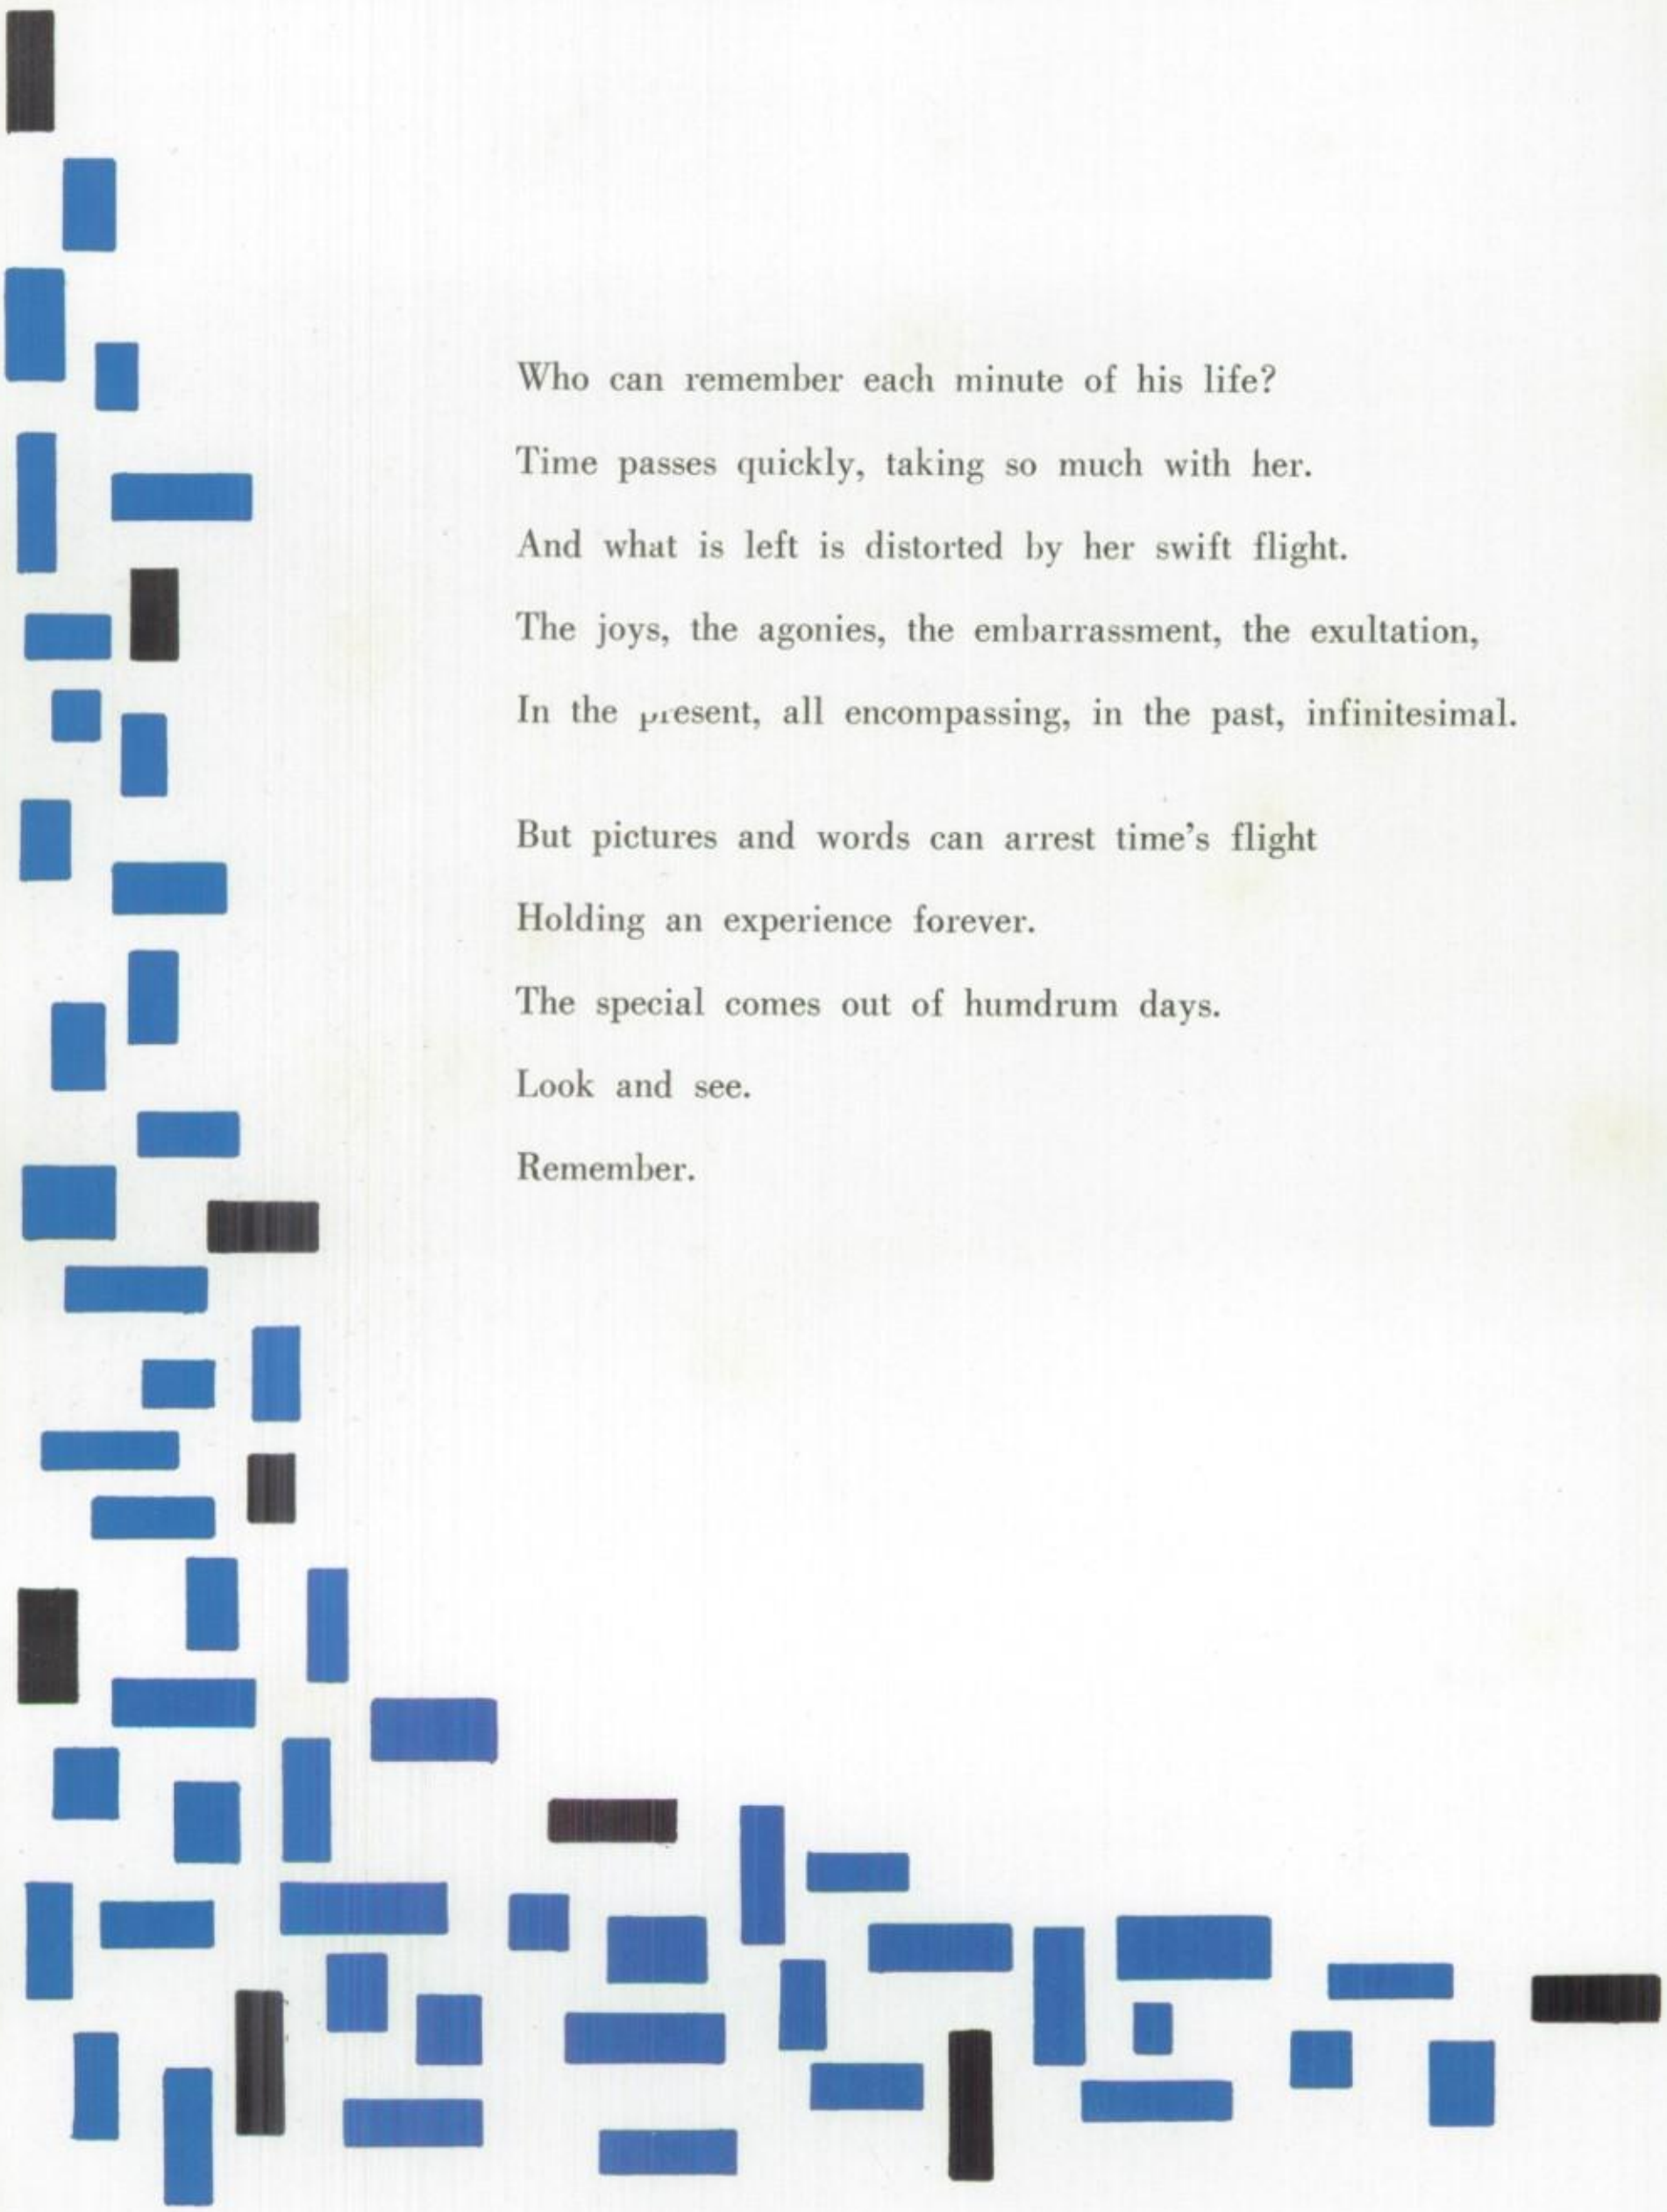
Moods, faces, personalities, ideas . . .

. . . all are pieces to the jigsaw puzzle
that is Ames High.







Who can remember each minute of his life?

Time passes quickly, taking so much with her.

And what is left is distorted by her swift flight.

The joys, the agonies, the embarrassment, the exultation,

In the present, all encompassing, in the past, infinitesimal.

But pictures and words can arrest time's flight

Holding an experience forever.

The special comes out of humdrum days.

Look and see.

Remember.

The mind, what is it to the young?
A catch-all for gossip, for jokes, for tales of woe.
A vast understanding yet to be realized.
A blob to be prodded, unyielding, with facts and figures,
A weapon against life, for life, life itself.

The mind, what is it to the teacher of the young?
A blank space behind vacant eyes.
A source of amusement, despair, encouragement.
A gaping reservoir begging to be filled.
A weapon against the future, for the future, the future itself.

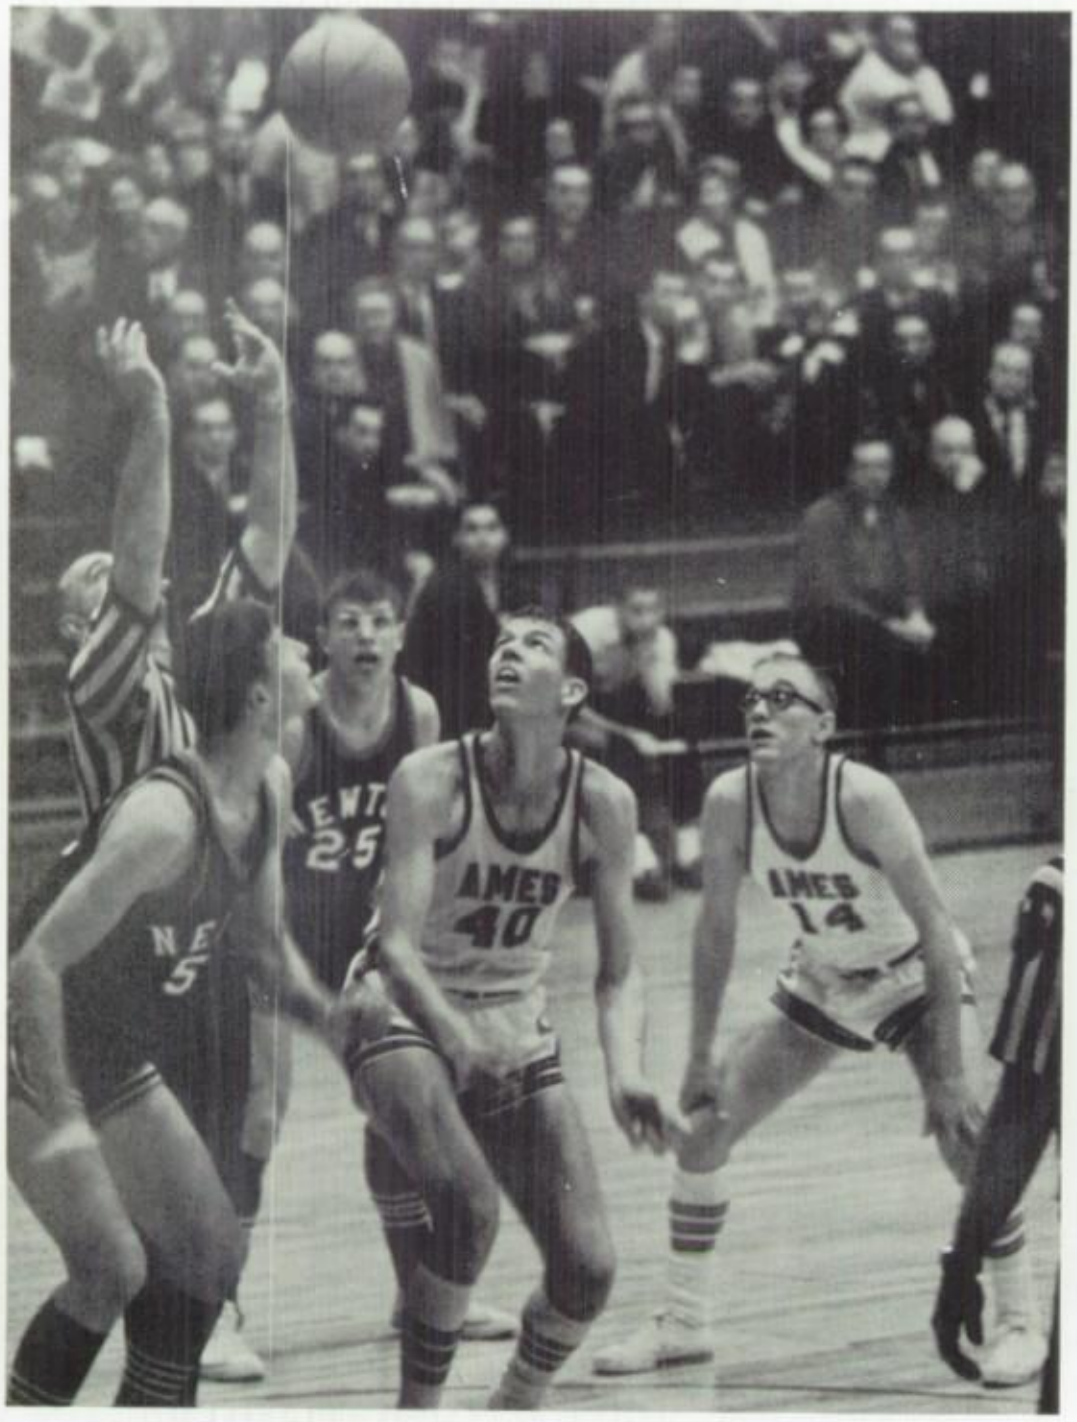
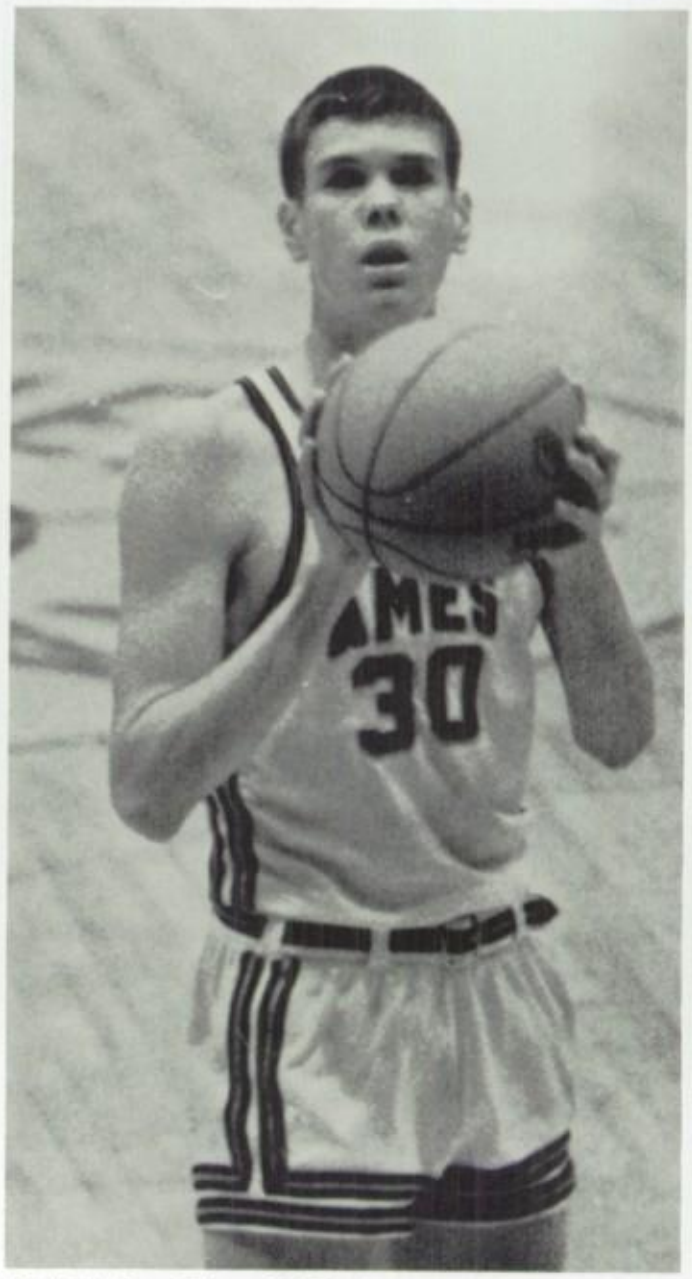
Teamwork and determination bring fine record

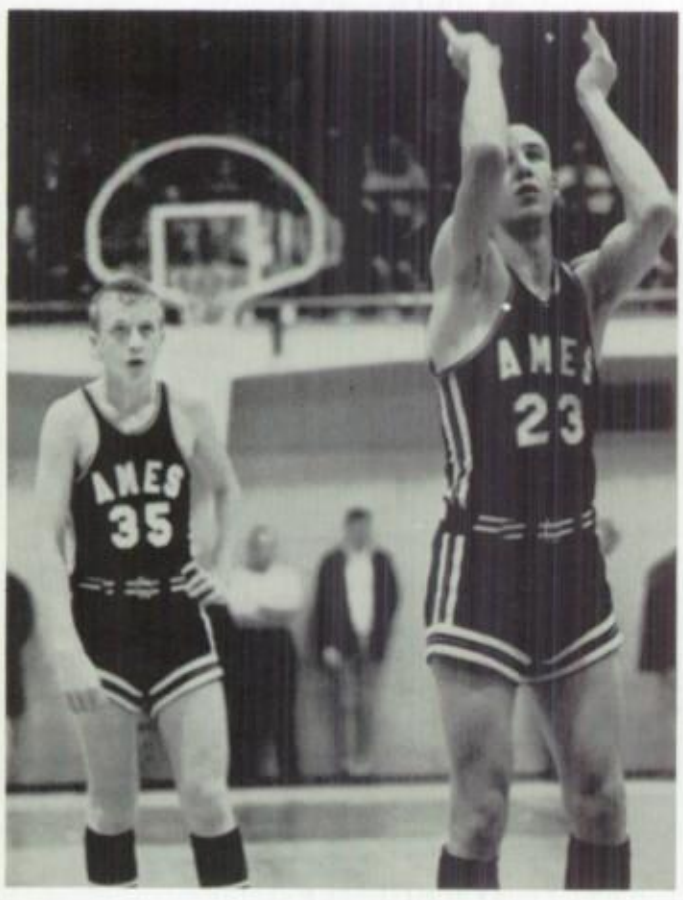


DUNLEAVY AND KETELSEN prepare for action in Ames' first win over Newton in eight starts.

JOHN HENSING'S rebounding aided Ames in its many victories.

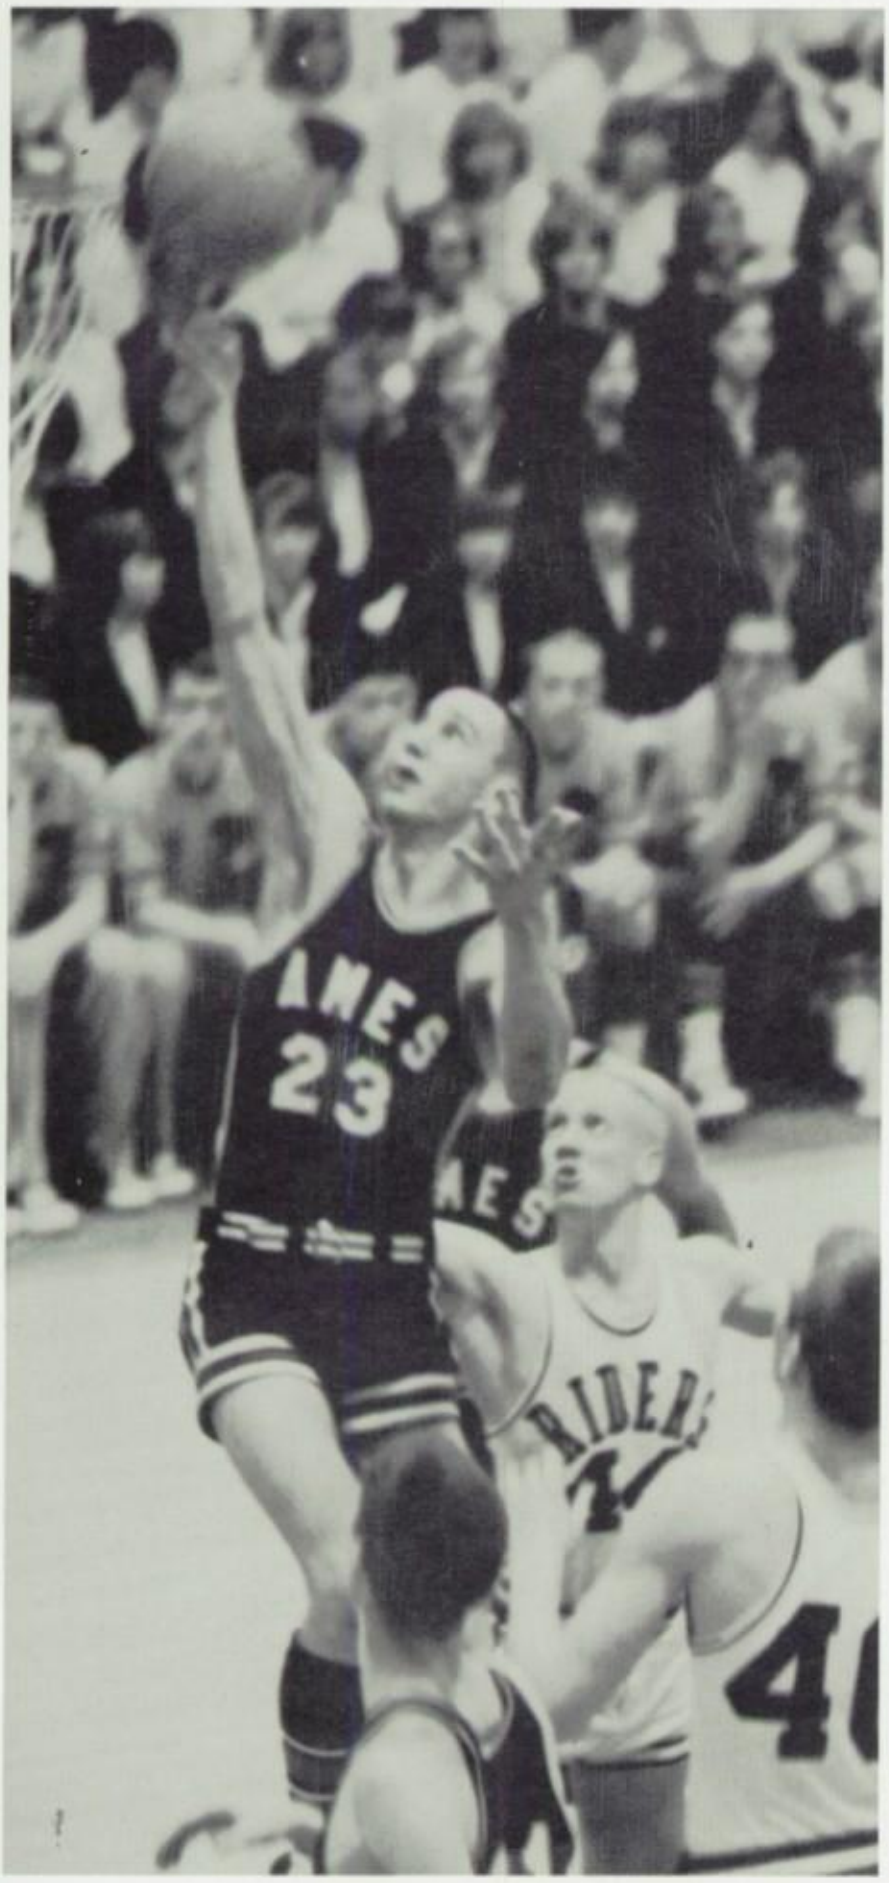


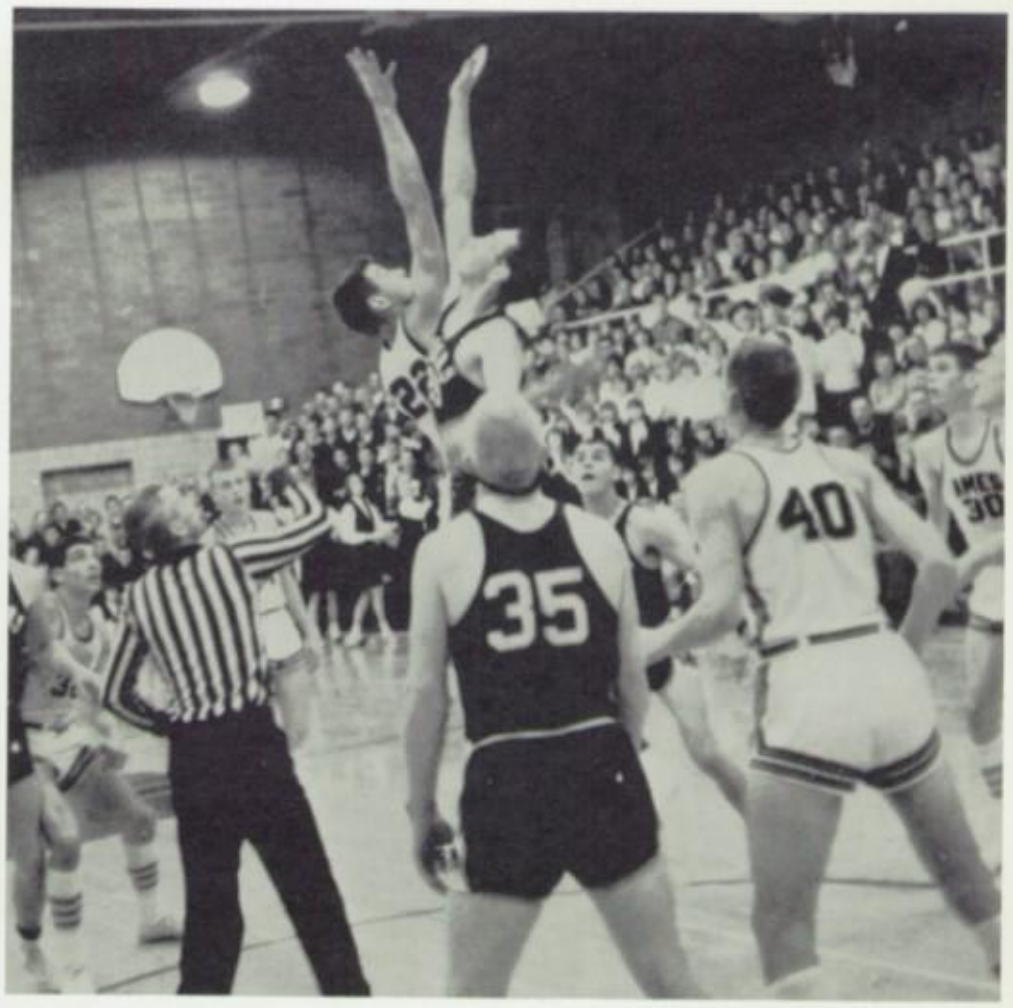
THE SHOOTING OF COE AND AGARD paced Ames through the season.



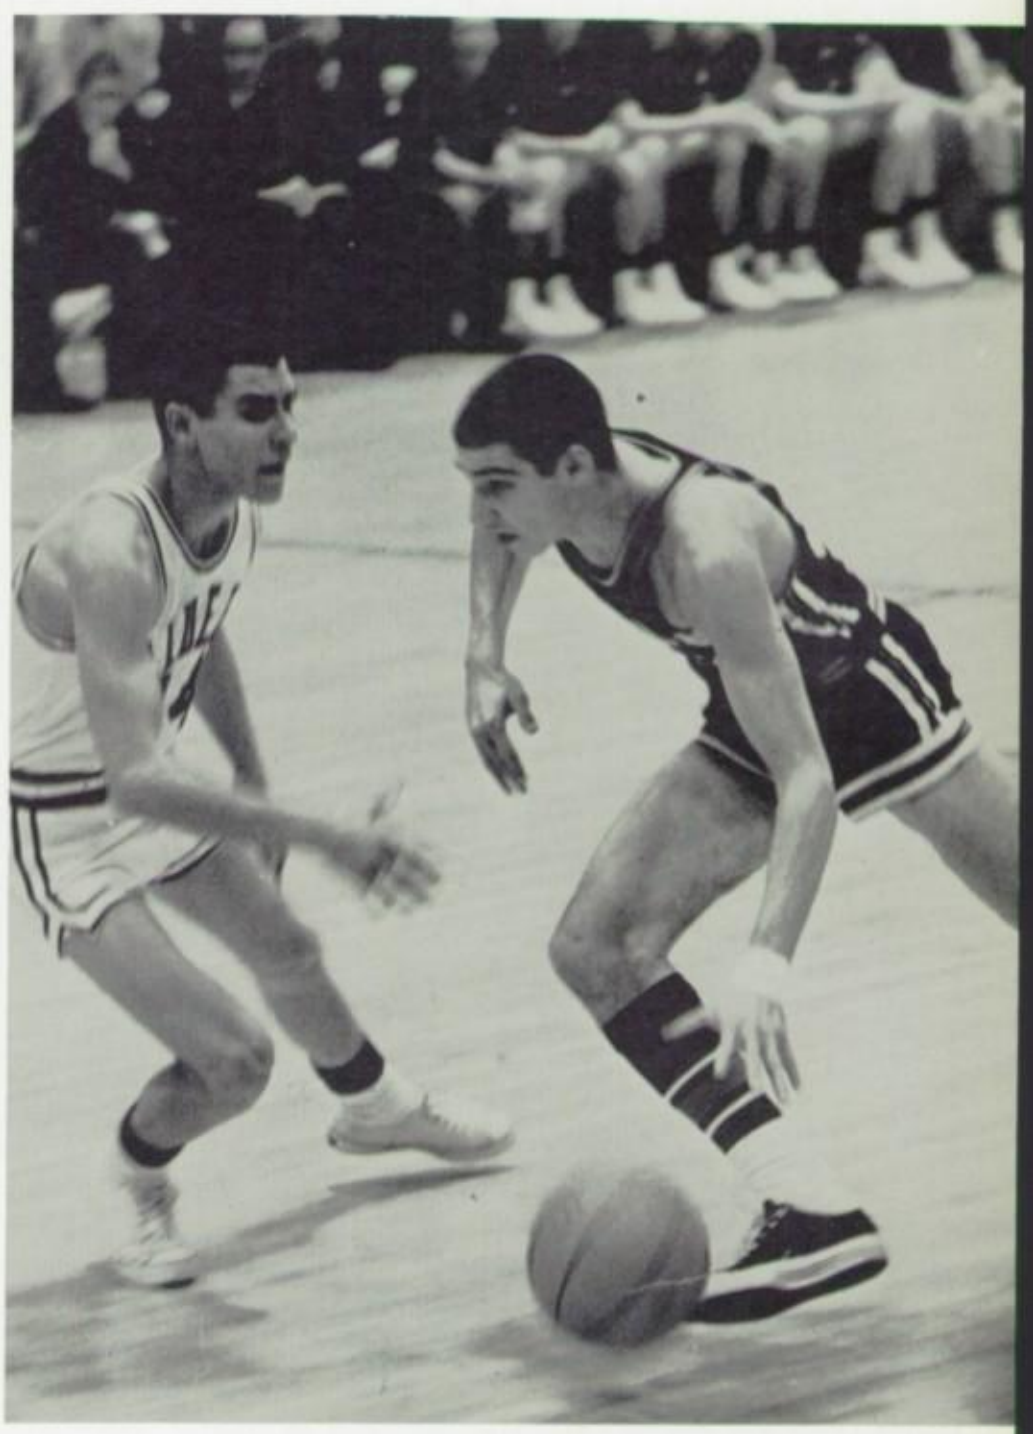
FINE JUNIOR PLAY by Tim McKinley bolstered Little Cyclone performances.

HIGH SCORING Steve Coe collects two more at Roosevelt.





A DETERMINED LITTLE CYCLONE TEAM surprised the experts with a 79-78 win over Roosevelt.



STEVE POSEGATE'S OUTSTANDING FLOOR PLAY spurred the Little Cyclones throughout the season.

All that has passed —
Good bye.
One life fades.
A new life awaits.
All that is to come —
Welcome.
